CHOOSING A DOCTOR.

A medical authority who may be presumed to understand the true inwardness of the profession has lately published some advice about the selection of a family physician, declaring such a choice to be a very important matter, often undertaken in the most haphazard

The following "dont's" are given: Don't choose an intemperate physician; don't choose one who has not the respect of his colleagues; don't tolerate one who is constantly slinging mud at his brethren; don't believe the claims of one who has to hire a hall or a column in a newspaper that the world may learn of his triumphs: don't choose the man who is ultra-professional. In choosing a specialist or a consultant it is well to be guided by the advice of the family physician, who, if he be honorable and broad minded, will cheerfully acquiesce in your desire to have the assistance of some one of his colleagues. If he becomes offended or assumes an injured air at the hint that he is not the only member of his profession the sooner his vanity receives a few hard knocks the better.

ABOUT RAILROAD TRAVEL PATRIOTISM, NOT POLITICS.

That a Prominent Katroad Official Says Relative to the Cost of Carrying Passengers on Western Roads.

Mr. P. S. Rustis, General Passenger Agent of the C. B. & Q. R. R., in a reent argument before the house committee of the Missourl legislature on the two-cent bill, gave some valuable and surprising information about the passenger business in the west. His tatements were based upon the reports of the interstate commerce commission and the railroad and warehouse comnission of Missouri.

Mr. Eustis showed in the first place that the volume of passenger traffic on railroads is dependent upon the density and wealth of population in the territory through which it runs, and then coinpared the population of Missouri and the raffic resulting from it with the same figures in other states, thus clearly illastrating the theory of his point.

The following table showing the relative population and rates is interesting n this connection.

Population revenue per per sq. mile. mile of R. R.

New York..... New England.. Mr. Eustis made the statement that, while the named rate in most of the western states was three cents per mile. the actual amount received is considerably less than that sum. This is due to the fact that the railroad having a long line between two points cannot charge more than the rate fixed by a road having a shorter line, and to excursion rates demanded by the people. all of which reduce the average rate materially.

But the most surprising assertion made by Mr. Eustis was that the western roads, with possibly one or two individual exceptions, carry passengers at an actual loss. The St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern was cited as an instance. Mr. Eustis produced a state | nized." ment of the expense on that road to show that the cost per passenger per mile exceeded three cents, the legal

It is the monitor Puritan, the river shows that it co-t the railroads two and three-one-thousandths cents per available for service. The Puritan mile to carry passengers exclusive of any was to have left the navy yard next charge for taxes, rents, interest on Tuesday to join the fleet in command mortgages and other items of the kind. Mr. Eustis declared that a two-cent flat rate in Missouri would reduce the average to one and three-quarters cents it not lower.

It was shown that lower rates do not argely increase traffic, and instances vere cited where reductions from four wats and three and one-half cents to inree cents per mile did not result in increased travel.

Answering the question as to whether or not rates in Europe were not lowor than in this country, Mr. Eustis showed that while the third-class rate on some European lines is lower, the second-class rates, which are paid by he great traveling public, are higher han American rates. The conveniences of second and third-class travel in Euope are not to be compared with those of America in point of comfort and con-

EASILY LEARN TO SWEAR.

The Stupidest Parrot Will Soon Acquire the Habit of Profamity. Third avenue, on the outskirts of the Howevy districts, boasts the only "parrot academy" on this side of the At lantic. In reality, it is only the back room of a bird-fancier's shop, but in it many wonderful things are accomplished in the way of educating parexpect to have this repaired with rots. When asked about his methods the proprietor of the shop, who is also the principal of the academy, explained length, in exceedingly bad English. He said he was German, but he very much resembled an Italian.

"You see, when the birds come in. I put them all loose in that room, where they remain for a few days until they become accustomed to their surround ings. Then I put with them a bird that can only say words of one syllable, as 'yes,' 'no,' 'cat,' 'dog.' He soon teaches the whole lot what he knows. "Then I put in a bird that can say longer words and simple sentences, and when they have mastered his lessons vet another bird, who teaches them longer sentences and how to ask and answer questions. That is about as far as the bird teachers can go.

"So my daughter and I finish off the amart ones, for parrots are like children, and all are not smart. I select the stupid birds and sell them off cheap, while the smart ones are still kept in that room until their education is complete. We teach them their letters and figures, how to add and subtract and to spell simple words with the aid of a blackboard.

"Then my daughter teaches them to sing with a piano accompaniment, to tell the time of day, and sometimes dance to music. No, we never teach them to swear, for we have no demand for swearing birds, though several times I have missed selling a bright bird because he swore at me when I was trying to show him off. They learn bad words from the people who come into the store and the boys passing along the street. The stupidest parrot car learn to swear."-N. Y. Hernld.

The loftiest inhabited place in the world is the Buddhist monastery of Haine, in Thibet. It is about 17,000 feet above the sea.

One of Mrs. Pinkham's Talks

Concerning a Mother's Duty to Her Young Daughter. Together with a Chat with Miss Marie Johnson.

The balance wheel of a woman's life is menstruation. On the proper perrmance of this function depends her health.

Irregularity lays the foundation of many diseases, and is in itself symptom of disease. It is of the greatest importance that regularity be accomplished as soon as possible after the flow is an established fact.

Disturbance of the menstrual function poisons the blood. In young girls suppression develops latent inherited tendencies to scrofula or consumption, and no time must be lost in restoring regularity. Many a young girl goes to her grave because this difficulty has been thought lightly of, and mother has said, "Time will bring about a cure; she is young, I don't worry about her."

Mother, when you see your daughter languid. and indifferent to things that usually interest a young girl, when you note that flush on her cheek, that glassy appearance in her eyes; when your daughter tells you that even the weight of her dress waist oppresses her, and that she has terrible pains in her stomach shortly after eating, don't ignore these signs! If you do, you will be following your daughter to the grave, for she will die! This is gospel truth-she is developing consumption of the bowels! Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest regulator known to medicine. Make haste to use it on the first appearance of the tell-tale symptoms; it will restore all the female organs to their normal condition. Miss Marie Johnson's letter to Mrs. Pinkham, which follows, should interest all mothers and young ladies. She says: "My health became so poor that I had to leave school. I was tired all the time, and had dreadful pains in my side and back. I would have the headache so badly that everything would appear black be-fore my eyes, and I could not go on with my studies. I was also troubled with irregularity of menses. I was very weak, and lost so much flesh that my friends became alarmed. My mother, who is a firm believer in your remedies from experience, thought perhaps they might benefit me, and wrote you for advice. I followed the advice you gave, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills as you directed, and am
